

Devorah Adler

From Wikipedia, the free encyclopedia

Devorah Adler is a political consultant and opposition research specialist for the Democratic National Committee in the United States. A former Assistant Director for Health Policy during the Bill Clinton presidency, Adler later served as Director of Research for the Democratic National Committee in the 2006 election cycle, and served as Director of Research for the Barack Obama campaign for the 2008 Democratic presidential nomination.^[1]

Adler was one of the Obama 2008 campaign's first hires in January 2007, assigned to debunk a widely circulated anonymous set of emails that rumored Obama was Muslim. Interviewed at that time by Politico.com, Adler said, "We've been bird-dogging it from the beginning; the first research document that I put together was a response to the 'Who is Barack Obama?' email."^[2]

References

- ¹ ^ /Chris Cilizza, Obama's Impressive Team, "The Fix," Washington Post blog, January 2007.
- ² ^ Ben Smith and Carrie Budoff Brown, "Email Smear Taxes Obama Campaign," Politico.com, January 26, 2008.

Retrieved from "http://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Devorah_Adler"

Categories: American political consultants | Living people

- This page was last modified on 11 May 2011 at 22:32.
 - Text is available under the Creative Commons Attribution-ShareAlike License; additional terms may apply. See Terms of Use for details.
- Wikipedia® is a registered trademark of the Wikimedia Foundation, Inc., a non-profit organization.